DEFENDANTS’ JOINT MOTION FOR TRANSFER AND REQUEST FOR STAY

Pursuant to Texas Government Code §§ 74.161-.164 and Texas Rule of Judicial Administration 13, Defendants Chesapeake Energy Corporation, Chesapeake Operating, L.L.C., Chesapeake Exploration, L.L.C. (“CELLC”), and Chesapeake Energy Marketing, L.L.C. (collectively the “Chesapeake Defendants”), TOTAL E&P, USA, INC. (“TEPUSA”), and Access MLP Operating, L.L.C. and Texas Midstream Gas Services, L.L.C. (collectively “Access”) move for transfer of related actions by landowners alleging royalty underpayments to a pretrial court for consolidated and coordinated pretrial proceedings.

INTRODUCTION AND FACTUAL BACKGROUND

More than 3,200 landowners have filed 97 separate suits in Johnson, Tarrant, and Dallas Counties, alleging that the Chesapeake Defendants and TEPUSA have underpaid Barnett Shale royalty payments by, among other things, charging excessive post-production costs and expenses (hereinafter, the “Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation”). CELLC and TEPUSA are working interest owners in the Barnett Shale, and Access owns the gathering system that services the majority of those working interests. At a January 23, 2015 administrative conference with Judge David Evans, Presiding Judge of the 8th Administrative Region, one of the plaintiffs' lawyers, Dan McDonald, stated that his firm would be representing more than 40,000 plaintiffs in 400 separate lawsuits by the end of 2015. Mr. McDonald and his affiliated counsel currently represent over 3,100 plaintiffs in 73 existing Texas state cases. Significantly, Dan McDonald has agreed that his cases in the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation should be transferred to an MDL for coordination.

The McDonald Law Firm is actively seeking more plaintiffs through advertisements on billboards and newspapers in Johnson and Tarrant Counties, and by town hall meetings and direct mail solicitation. The ads assert that Chesapeake has "ripped off" royalty owners and urge potential plaintiffs to contact the firm through their website <http://royaltyripcoff.com/>. While the McDonald Law Firm is plaintiffs' counsel of record in the vast majority of the pending cases, there are 24 other royalty-related cases currently pending with different counsel of record, who do not agree to an MDL proceeding.

Scope of the Requested MDL: Specifically, Defendants request MDL consolidation for the cases listed in Appendix A (as well as anticipated future tag-along actions), which share the following characteristics:

- a. claims of royalty underpayment,
- b. for production from properties in the Barnett Shale,<sup>1</sup>
- c. which are directed against the Chesapeake Defendants<sup>2</sup> (and may include as Defendants TEPUSA, Access, and others).

While the ultimate result in any case will depend on a plaintiff's individual lease and circumstances, the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation is appropriate for MDL consolidation because the cases share common issues of fact, including whether royalty payments by CELLC and TEPUSA were underpaid to landowners in the Barnett Shale, and whether the post-production costs allocated to those royalties were proper, or for the proper amount. These cases also share common issues of fact related to gas measurement, hedging practices, gas pricing, and allegations of fraud and sham transactions, tortious interference with contracts, antitrust violations, estoppel claims, and conspiracy.

History of the Litigation: Beginning in April 2014, the McDonald Law Firm and other counsel began a coordinated effort to file a large volume of cases against the Chesapeake Defendants, TEPUSA, and Access. The McDonald Law

<sup>1</sup> The Barnett Shale encompasses a number of Texas counties (Tarrant, Johnson, Denton, Wise, Archer, Bosque, Clay, Comanche, Cooke, Coryell, Dallas, Eastland, Ellis, Erath, Hamilton, Hill, Hood, Jack, Montagne, Palo Pinto, Parker, Shackleford, Somerrell, Stephens, and Young), but the litigation to this point has mainly been filed in Johnson and Tarrant counties.

<sup>2</sup> The undersigned defense counsel for the Chesapeake Defendants collectively represent those defendants in the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation listed in Appendix A. However, some of the undersigned defense counsel have appeared for the Chesapeake Defendants in some, but not all, of the cases listed in Appendix A.

Firm filed the bulk of the cases, almost all of which were filed in Johnson County. District Judges Neill and Bridewell had previously recused themselves from all Chesapeake matters because they held mineral interests subject to CELLC leases. As a result, Judge Bosworth of the 413th District Court of Johnson County agreed to consolidate all cases involving Chesapeake in his court.

On January 14, 2015, however, Judge Bosworth voluntarily recused himself, leaving no sitting judge left in Johnson County to hear these cases.<sup>3</sup> In his letter to Judge Evans, Judge Bosworth wrote that his “review of the latest group of filings has revealed that a number of political subdivisions, such as Johnson County and several school districts, elected officials . . . , close friends, and relatives have an interest, have joined in lawsuits against Chesapeake.” These circumstances gave rise to what Judge Bosworth described as “an intractable web of conflict around me from which I am obligated to recuse myself.”<sup>4</sup>

Judge Bosworth’s letter makes the same arguments that Defendants make for an MDL here: “As these cases share many common questions of fact and law, consolidating these cases also provided uniformity and consistency in trial court rulings on common questions and worked to provide a more efficient and fair administration of these disputes.” Judge Bosworth reiterated “the necessity to administer these cases uniformly” and attached a list of cases that needed to be reassigned.

Status of Royalty Cases: Judge Evans has done an excellent job of addressing the need for new assigned judges after Judge Bosworth’s recusal. He scheduled a status conference with the numerous parties in person on January 23, 2015 to get input on case allocation and administration, and to advise that he would immediately address the process of appointing judges. He held further status update conferences on January 30, February 2 and 3, 2015. On February 9, Judge Evans advised all parties by letter that he was assigning 76 Johnson County cases to ten different Tarrant County courts.<sup>5</sup>

Defense counsel and counsel associated with the McDonald Law Firm have worked together in the past weeks to reschedule immediate pending depositions. They are attempting to work together to narrow the scope of the 240 separate topics on which plaintiffs have sought corporate representative testimony in multiple cases. They are also working toward narrowing document disputes. However, there is no agreement to coordinate discovery so that identical discovery requests are only answered once, documents are only produced once, and witnesses are only deposed once. And there is no agreement on deposition and discovery requests, which continue to be served almost daily by plaintiffs' counsel in other cases.

Some depositions have been taken and many documents have been provided, but many more depositions are scheduled for the upcoming months. Additionally, comprehensive special exceptions, and motions to compel, to quash, and for protection were filed and set for hearing earlier this year in Johnson County and need to be heard. A large number of cases have only recently been filed, so no significant discovery has yet taken place in those cases. In light of the above, all cases are ripe for MDL pretrial coordination.

Given the common issues of fact involved, and the complications associated with case management thus far, transfer of all Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation (and any future Texas state court suits) to a single pretrial court for consolidated and coordinated pretrial proceedings is warranted. Consolidation will eliminate potential judicial recusals and duplicative discovery, avoid conflicting trial settings, avoid conflicting legal rulings, conserve judicial resources, be more convenient for the parties and witnesses, and otherwise promote the just and efficient conduct of all of the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation.

ARGUMENTS AND AUTHORITIES

The Judicial Panel on Multidistrict Litigation may transfer actions involving one or more common questions of fact pending in Texas state courts to any district court for coordinated or consolidated pretrial proceedings when the transfer is (1) “for the convenience of the parties and witnesses” and will (2) “promote the just and efficient conduct of the actions.” See TEX. GOV’T CODE § 74.162; TEX. R. JUD. ADMIN. 13.3(1). These prerequisites are met here.

A. All Cases in the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation Involve Common Questions of Fact.

Each case filed against the Chesapeake Defendants (including some naming TEPUSA and Access as Defendants) alleges that they improperly calculated royalty payments to landowners by, among other things, deducting various post-production costs from the royalty payments. Plaintiffs further allege those various post-production costs are not reasonable.

Many petitions describe the crux of the allegation as follows: “The royalty-accounting system employed by Chesapeake...results in the underpayment of royalties to every royalty owner in every well operated by Chesapeake in Johnson County.”<sup>6</sup> Such an allegation alone satisfies the elements required under the MDL statute. See In re State Farm Lloyds Hidalgo Cnty. Hail Storm Litig., 434 S.W.3d

<sup>6</sup> See, e.g., Cates Foundation, LP v. Chesapeake Operating, Inc. et al., Case No. C201400214 (413th Dis. Ct. of Johnson County, Texas) at ¶ 50. The substantive parts of all pleadings in cases handled by the McDonald Law Firm including this allegation, are verbatim.

350, 353 (Tex. M.D.L. Panel 2014) (noting that an allegation that claims were handled via similar business practices demonstrates common fact questions). In addition, some or all of the plaintiffs' claims in each case involve allegations that the Chesapeake Defendants and TEPUSA acted improperly by:

- “deducting costs from royalties paid the [plaintiff];
- imposing directly or indirectly upon royalties paid the [plaintiff] costs of gathering, production, transportation, treating, compression, dehydration, processing, marketing, trucking or other expenses;
- failing to pay the [plaintiff] a royalty based upon the higher of (a) the proceeds from the bona fide arms length sale of oil, gas, casinghead gas and any other liquid or gaseous hydrocarbons, or (b) the market value thereof;
- failing to pay the [plaintiff] royalties on products based upon the gross market value or proceeds of a bona fide or arms length sale thereof, whichever is higher;
- failing to pay the [plaintiff] royalties on residue gas or gas remaining after separation, extraction or processing operations, based upon the proceeds of a bona fide or arms length sale or the market value thereof, whichever is higher;
- purporting to enter into a contract for the sale, delivery, transportation or processing of gas produced from the leased premises without the prior written approval of the [plaintiff];
- selling oil, gas or products produced from the leased lands to a subsidiary or affiliate without the [plaintiff's] prior written permission.”<sup>7</sup>

<sup>7</sup> See, e.g., Plaintiff's First Amended Petition, City of Fort Worth v. Chesapeake Operating, Inc. et al., Case No. 48-268798-13 (48th Dist. Ct. of Tarrant County, Texas) at ¶17.

Moreover, Chesapeake's gathering agreements and sales contracts are generally uniform across the Barnett Shale field and common to many of the leases. The contractual obligations in these agreements will be overlaid on each landowner's individual lease to determine whether there is a breach of the lease obligations. As in In re Ocwen Loan Servicing, LLC Mortgage Servicing Litigation, 286 S.W.3d 669, 672 (Tex. M.D.L. Panel 2007) "discovery will be aimed at disclosing the nature of these common practices and procedures," and "similar legal issues will arise as to whether those standard practices and procedures give rise to liability under the commonly alleged theories."

There are a large number of separate leases at issue in the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation, each with its own royalty obligations. While the ultimate determinations in these lawsuits are dependent on the particular plaintiff's lease and circumstances, there are common facts that run throughout the cases. This Panel has previously consolidated cases with common facts despite an argument that some plaintiffs' agreements were not identical. See In re Nationstar Mortgage, LLC Texas Home Equity Loan Modif. Litig., MDL No. 13-0427 (Tex. M.D.L. Panel Aug. 16, 2013) (citing In re Ocwen Loan Servicing, LLC, 286 S.W.3d at 672). Defendants request that the Panel do the same here.

Indeed, the plaintiffs themselves have recognized that these cases involve common questions of fact. In the cases filed by the McDonald Law Firm, the petitions include a heading that reads “Facts Common to All Barnett Shale Royalty Underpayment Plaintiff[s],” followed by 28 paragraphs alleging facts common to all Barnett Shale royalty underpayment plaintiffs, and only two paragraphs with factual allegations that are specific to the plaintiffs in the particular case.<sup>8</sup> This again supports pretrial MDL consolidation.

Additionally, a number of the cases on file include from 250 to 475 plaintiffs joined in one case, further suggesting a high degree of factual relatedness.<sup>9</sup> See In re Cano Petroleum, Inc., 283 S.W.3d 179, 181 & n.4 (Tex. M.D.L. Panel 2008) (“The fact that ninety-one plaintiffs have been joined in seven cases (seventy-eight property-damage plaintiffs in five cases) suggests a certain degree of relatedness.”); see also TEX. R. CIV. P. 40.<sup>10</sup>

<sup>8</sup> See Cates Foundation, LP v. Chesapeake Operating, Inc. et al., No. C201400214 (413th Dist. Ct. of Johnson County, Texas) at ¶¶18-48. Should this Panel desire to review these pleadings, Defendants will seek leave to provide them.

<sup>9</sup> See, e.g., A+ Realty Solutions LLC et al. v. Chesapeake Energy Corp. et al., No. C201500019 (413th Dist. Ct. of Johnson County, Texas) (475 plaintiffs); A+ Realty Solutions LLC et al. v. Chesapeake Energy Corp. et al., No. C20150007 (413th Dist. Ct. of Johnson County, Texas) (250 plaintiffs); Frankie Adcock et al. v. Chesapeake Energy Corp. et al., No. C201400579 (413th Dist. Ct. of Johnson County, Texas) (265 plaintiffs); Richard Aguirre et al. v. Chesapeake Energy Corp. et al., No. C201400594 (413th Dist. Ct. of Johnson County, Texas) (225 plaintiffs); Ables et al. v. Chesapeake Operating, Inc. et al., No. C201400528 (413th Dist. Ct. of Johnson County, Texas) (400 plaintiffs).

<sup>10</sup> Of course, this does not mean that all plaintiffs’ claims could or should be tried at the same time, however. See In re Ethyl Corp., 975 S.W.2d 606, 614 (Tex. 1998); In re Bristol-Myers Squibb Co., 975 S.W.2d 601 (Tex. 1998). Defendants instead believe that the cases should be tried on a much more specific, lease-by-lease basis. Defendants reserve the right to request a severance of plaintiffs and claims as trial settings approach.

In sum, the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation is precisely the situation for which the MDL rules were designed. The key issues in these cases involve common questions of fact and should therefore be transferred to a pretrial court for consolidation and coordination.

B. Transfer of Related Cases Will Serve the Convenience of the Parties and Witnesses and Promote the Just and Efficient Conduct of the Cases.

Transfer of the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation to an MDL will achieve the mandated objectives of convenience and efficiency. See TEX. GOV'T CODE § 74.162. First, it is more convenient for both the parties and the witnesses if all the cases are transferred to a pretrial court. The liability issues in each case will involve testimony from common expert witnesses and the same fact witnesses. As the Panel has noted, “it is undeniable that it is more convenient for witnesses and parties who find themselves involved in several related cases to litigate in one pretrial court instead of several.” In re Silica Prods. Liab. Litig., 166 S.W.3d 3, 5 (Tex. M.D.L. Panel 2004). This case is no different. By consolidating or coordinating all pretrial matters, the parties will avoid duplicative discovery, the witnesses will avoid sitting for multiple depositions, and consistent legal rulings will be issued.

Thus far, plaintiffs have sought massive discovery in many of the individual cases and will likely request the same extensive discovery in each of the other cases. Current requests in many of the lawsuits comprise over 300 requests for production, including requests for: (a) nearly every contract that the Chesapeake Defendants have ever entered into, including drafts and correspondence concerning such agreements, regardless of whether those agreements impact the plaintiffs in a particular case;<sup>11</sup> (b) documents concerning other Chesapeake royalty owners in Johnson County;<sup>12</sup> and (c) pleadings and deposition transcripts from unrelated Chesapeake Operating, Inc. et al.*, Case No. C201400214 ("All gas purchase contracts between You and any affiliated company and non-affiliated company, including all drafts and revisions of such contracts and all revisions, amendments, or other changes to such contracts, either proposed or agreed between the parties to such contracts"); No. 28 ("All correspondence concerning the negotiation of gas purchases between You and any affiliated and non-affiliated company"); No. 29 ("All correspondence concerning the marketing of gas between You and any affiliated company"); No. 33 ("All joint operating agreements to which You and any affiliated company are a party"); No. 50 ("All agreements and contracts between You and any affiliated company").

cases.<sup>13</sup> Additionally, in a number of these cases, plaintiffs have sought corporate representative depositions on 240 topics, including many topics that Chesapeake believes are objectionable.<sup>14</sup> If transfer is not ordered and discovery not coordinated, then thousands of hours of time will be spent responding to those requests and taking depositions, and this process will be repeated with each newly filed case.<sup>15</sup> Since it is highly likely every plaintiff will request the same or similar information, transfer is needed to prevent defendants from having to respond to the same requests, produce voluminous documents multiple times, and produce the same witnesses for repeated depositions.

Once the cases are transferred, however, the pretrial court can establish a comprehensive discovery plan — including master discovery requests, a document depository, uniform deposition guidelines — enter a single protective order, determine whether certain experts should be permitted to testify or should be stricken, and implement other procedures to ensure that pretrial matters are coordinated and consistent among all Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation Texas state court cases.

Second, transfer of all cases in the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation will promote the just and efficient handling of each case. The voluminous discovery anticipated in each action places additional burdens on the trial courts and lessens the attention those trial courts can give to both the case at issue and the other cases on the court's docket. A transfer to a pretrial court helps mitigate against these problems and saves judicial resources by preventing duplicative discovery. Additionally, transfer of all Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation to one pretrial court will ensure that the pretrial court can devote substantially more time to the cases, as the litigation "will not be just one of many cases on a crowded docket competing for [the judge's] attention." In re Silica Prods. Liab. Litig., 166 S.W.3d at 6 (noting that trial judges are often inclined to set cases for trial before they are ready in order to promote settlement, whereas pretrial courts are more inclined to give cases more attention and not return them to the trial courts until they are truly ready for trial).

Third, transfer to one pretrial court ensures that all pretrial issues will be decided consistently, which ensures the just handling of each case. This includes legal rulings that may be common to all cases, including special exceptions, dispositive motions, and Daubert motions. An MDL would put the parties on equal footing and prevent the inequitable result of the parties obtaining inconsistent rulings simply because a variety of judges handled the pretrial matters. Id. As the Panel previously noted, “[a] consistent and steady judicial hand at the helm should in fact promote agreements because lawyers will know where the court stands on recurring issues.” Id.

Finally, transferring all Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation to a pretrial court will provide coordinated efforts to achieve a just and efficient handling of the Texas state court cases. For all these reasons, the Panel should transfer the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation to a pretrial court for coordination.

REQUEST FOR STAY

Defendants request that this Panel issue an order staying all trial court proceedings and discovery in the cases shown in Appendix A, and any tag-along cases,<sup>16</sup> pending consideration of, and a ruling on, this motion for transfer by the Panel. See TEX. R. JUD. ADMIN. 13.4(b).

<sup>16</sup> New cases are being filed weekly, often with hundreds of individual plaintiffs. Since the beginning of January 2015, there have been over 30 new filings served on Chesapeake with over 1,800 plaintiffs.

With respect to the current status of discovery in the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation, an agreement has been reached between the Chesapeake Defendants and the McDonald Law Firm (but not other plaintiffs' counsel) on immediate pending depositions, rescheduling them for May and June, 2015.<sup>17</sup> The Chesapeake Defendants intend to comply with that agreement.<sup>18</sup> The agreement contemplates that the Chesapeake Defendants may argue to an MDL judge, if MDL transfer is granted, that these depositions should be the only depositions taken of these witnesses for all cases; and that plaintiffs may oppose such a request. A stay is warranted because it would be inconsistent for these witnesses to be deposed in other cases while the MDL request is pending.

A stay is also warranted given the large volume of written discovery requests that are being served almost daily on the Defendants. Many plaintiffs are undertaking duplicative discovery. There are pending motions to compel by plaintiffs that seek additional documents. Likewise, the Chesapeake Defendants

<sup>17</sup> The scope of the depositions is presently subject to dispute, and Defendants and Dan McDonald have agreed that if the scope cannot be resolved by agreement, it should be addressed by an MDL judge, if an MDL is granted.

<sup>18</sup> That agreement states that depositions of certain current and former Chesapeake employees that are the subject of the agreement will go forward on specific dates in May and June, 2015. The Chesapeake Defendants are not seeking a stay of the time and date of those depositions. The agreement contemplates that unresolved issues of scope, or the issue of whether these are the only depositions allowable of those witnesses, will be resolved by the MDL judge, if an MDL is granted. In addition, the Access defendants are in discussions on alternative deposition dates for Access representatives, and Access is not seeking a stay of any deposition that is rescheduled pursuant to any such agreement that may be reached. Finally, TOTAL is not seeking to stay the previously scheduled deposition of Dawn Lannin.

have pending motions for protection and special exceptions, which will narrow the issues for discovery. As previously discussed, in some cases the corporate representative notice for Chesapeake requests testimony on 240 separate topics. Although the Chesapeake Defendants and the McDonald Law Firm have agreed to work together to tailor requested discovery and work on a list of search terms for electronic data, there is no agreement with other counsel. And there is no agreement at all to coordinate discovery so that identical discovery requests are only answered once, documents are only produced once, and witnesses are only deposed once.

In short, trial proceedings and discovery should be stayed pending consideration of this motion for transfer because conducting discovery now in individual cases undermines the coordinated discovery that an MDL would achieve.

CONCLUSION

Defendants respectfully request that the Panel grant their motion and transfer the cases in the related Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation referenced in Appendix A, along with any tag-along cases, to a pretrial court for consolidated and coordinated pretrial proceedings. A transfer will promote the convenience of the parties and witnesses and will provide for the just and efficient handling of the cases. Defendants also seek an order from this Panel immediately staying each case in the Chesapeake Barnett Royalty Litigation pending a ruling by this Panel.

Additionally, Defendants request any further relief to which they may be entitled.
